If the CXX=="clang++" and CC=="clang", then the configure step completes.

configure: error: C compiler cannot create executables

It's your compiler who's dying. Report this to Raspbian.

Does that also apply to the LLVM based session that does not have such an error message?

#6 - 04/26/2017 12:02 PM - martin_vahi (Martin Vahi)

It does seem to be able to compile with GCC, if the CFLAGS=="" and

```
./configure --prefix=/home/mmmv_applications_set_01/applications/Ruby/v_2_4_1 --enable-shared --enable-load-relative --enable-multiarch
--disable-install-doc --disable-install-rdoc

Previously

CFLAGS==" -mtune=native -ftree-vectorize "

It seems that the problem was the CFLAGS value

-mtune=native

which also caused the build of other applications to fail.
I'll try to report it to Raspbian.

I'm sorry for making this noise here.
