EDITORIAL

Between 6 and 9 June 2024, the tenth elections to the European parliament by direct universal suffrage were held in the 27 Member States of the European Union. The new edition of the European and National Elections Results Review examines the election results in detail and places them in a broader context. It remains the most complete and comprehensive source of data on developments across the political spectrum in the EU, meticulously tracking the dynamic composition of the European Parliament over time. With data going back to the first direct elections to the European Parliament in 1979, the 'Review' is an essential reference source on the composition of the European Parliament and on the national political landscapes.

The current edition, published in September 2024, updates all the changes in the composition of the European Parliament at the beginning of its 10th term. It provides information on the Members of the ingoing Parliament by country, gender, political group and party affiliation as of its constitutive session on 16/07/2024.

HOW THE COMPOSITION OF THE PARLIAMENT HAS CHANGED

This edition is based on the composition of the European Parliament (EP) following the 2024 European elections. A total of 720 Members of the European Parliament (MEPs) have been elected. This is an increase of 15 MEPs compared to the 705 MEPs in the outgoing Parliament. ES, FR and NL were allocated two additional MEPs; AT, BE, DK, FI, IE, LV, PL, SI and SK were allocated one additional MEP. At the constitutive session, one seat won by the Junts UE list in Spain was still vacant; the figures in the tables on the composition of the EP in this Review therefore add up to 719 MEPs.

Another change concerns the structure of the political groups. As of 16 July 2024, the European Parliament is composed as follows: EPP group is made out of 188 Members, S&D group of 136, 84 belong to the newly created group Patriots for Europe, 78 to ECR, 77 are Members of Renew Europe, 53 of the Greens/EFA, 46 belong to the LEFT, 24 to as well newly created ESN, and 33 MEPs are non-attached. As of July 2024, 277 (38,5%) of the 719 MEPs are female, 441 (61,3%) Members are male, and one MEP does not identify as either.

This and more information on the composition of the European Parliament can be found in the section 'The composition of the incoming European Parliament'.

HOW THE NUMBER OF NATIONAL PARTIES IN THE EP HAS CHANGED

The composition of the newly elected EP shows that the fragmentation of the party systems in Europe has continued. At the constitutive session of the 2024 European Parliament, 207 parties were represented – 12 more than in the constitutive session of 2019, which still included parties from the UK. The tables in the section 'Number of national parties in the European Parliament' provide more information on this topic.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN TURNOUT

The overall voter turnout in the 2024 European elections has remained stable compared to 2019. The Review does not only give a country-by-country comparison of turnout at the European elections, it also allows comparisons between EU-level and national participation in its section 'Turnout: EE2024 and legislative elections in the member states'.

COMPARATIVE ELECTION RESULTS PER COUNTRY

In addition to documenting the results of the European elections, the new version of the Review also covers the most recent national and direct presidential elections held in the Member States. Belgium and Bulgaria held their national parliamentary elections on the same day as European elections, and France shortly afterwards.

The tables in the section 'National results by Member State' compare in detail the results of the European elections with those of the most recent national legislative elections. They provide a comprehensive picture of recent changes in European party systems.

* The outgoing Parliament as of the 30th of June 2014 is counting 764 instead of the foreseen 766 members. This is due to two vacant seats in Belgium. One member of the CD&V (EPP) deceased on the 15th of May 2014. Another member of the PS (S&D) abandoned his function as MEP on the 19th of June 2014 due to incompatibility.

NB: Ireland is divided into four constituencies and that the percentages of votes per party in the table refer to national first preference votes only. Under the Irish preferential voting system (the Single Transferable Vote (STV) in multi-member constituencies) the number of seats won per party in each constituency depends partly on the first preference votes and partly on lower-order preferences. Candidates who receive a number of votes equal to or greater than the "quota" are elected and their surplus votes are transferred according to the next preference expressed by the voter. When no surplus votes remain to be distributed, the lowest candidate is eliminated and his/her votes are transferred according to the next preferences, and so on until all the seats are filled.

^{N.B.} Each voter has as many votes as there are candidates to elect i.e. 6.
 Votes can be expressed either by voting for a list or by voting for a candidate. The voter who votes for a list can not cast any other vote or else they will risk their vote being discounted, as long as the chosen list is composed of less than 6 candidates. The voter who votes for a candidate can choose his/her candidates from the same list or from different lists, but he/she must be careful not to cast more votes than there are seats available (6).
