

An Introduction from Francesca Dow, Managing Director, Penguin Random House Children's:

Welcome to Penguin Random House Children's! The home of the iconic Penguin, Puffin and Ladybird book brands, and so many children's authors, illustrators and brands in our creative community.

I am proud to be MD of our thriving and successful children's publishing house. We are lucky to publish a rich treasure trove of children's classics and successful new children's and YA brand authors. But we are also always looking out for the most exciting new talent to our list – all of which you will find in here, in our catalogue.

I joined Penguin in 2002, arriving as Children's MD for Puffin. My role – and the company! – have evolved in that time, as in any dynamic business, but constant throughout has been my good fortune to work with so many talented children's authors, illustrators and creative partners. Every book is special. Every book is different. Every book gives us the opportunity to come together as a creative team to ensure its successful journey to publication.

The story of Puffin began in 1940, with the very first published Puffin book offering support to children, evacuated during WWII. Young readers have been growing up with Puffin now for nearly 85 years – we'll be celebrating that big anniversary in 2025 – and our books have continued to be by their side through personal and historical milestones.

Since publishing the first classic Ladybird book in 1914, Ladybird has become an iconic, global brand, beloved by generations as the early gateway to reading for millions of children. Often, a Ladybird book is the very first book a baby or child encounters.

Our Ladybird and Puffin and our Penguin brands are a seal of quality and trust for our readers. We are proud of our literary heritage but excited about what the future holds, finding today's and tomorrow's talented authors and illustrators, to excite our future young readers. Ladybird and Puffin and Penguin YA play a vital role in creating the next generation of readers and our mission is to ensure we publish stories and make books for every child.

“Stories are the most important thing in the world. Without stories, we wouldn't be human beings at all.” Philip Pullman

As Penguin YA, Puffin and Ladybird, we make books for everyone because we believe a book can change anyone. We believe stories support, inspire and empower children and young people to feel they can be and do anything. We believe in the power of reading, the magic of storytelling, and every child's right to access stories, and to see themselves reflected in the books we publish.

I hope you can see this all brought to life in these pages, and you enjoy everything Penguin Random House Children's has to offer...

Thank you,
